Differentiating Coat Of Arms Types On South Australia Newspaper Wrappers: Professor John K. Courtis

Congratulations on your research of the different coat-of-arms types on the South Australian wrappers (Postal Stationery Collector, August 2004).

This brings back memories, as I had arrived at precisely identical findings more than 25 years ago, when no one else was at all interested in this type of thing.

My collection has since been dispersed and has undergone a metamorphosis by supplying building blocks (or chunks) to far more serious efforts.

One detail in your article calls for slight correction: The wording "Honi soit qui mal y pense" is, in fact, in French and not Latin, as is "Dieu et mon droit".

The first is the motto of the 'Order of the Garter' and is generally rendered as "Evil be to him who evil thinks", albeit 'shame to him' would be more appropriate. ('Honi' from 'honnir' – to mock, ridicule).

The second is "God and my right" and was the parole of Richard I at the battle of Gisors (1198), but not apparently adopted as royal motto of England until the time of Henry VI.

(Reference: 'Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable' 1977ed.)

I am not nit picking, but future exhibitors just might adopt the printed quotation in their displays and possibly lose marks as a result of being spotted by an alert judge.

However, just a minor hiccup in a great effort.

POSTAL STATIONERY: ITEMS OF CHARACTER

Bernie Beston

The definition of Postal Stationery, and its application to specific pieces, continues to provide challenges for Stationery and Thematic Collectors, and especially exhibitors. This Victorian [Colony of] item falls with in the accepted definition as the payment of postage is notated by the use of the words FREE. It was sent to Adelaide from Melbourne Victoria on the 12 March 1862. Its use had no legislative authority. The reverse side was intended for use by the recipient, and titled ON HER MAJESTY'S SERVICE bears no Postage Paid or Free Indicia and hence was liable for postage. It is doubtful if the Government Service referred to was the Crown of South Australia, but rather it is more likely to have been Victoria. Whether any other postage was enclosed in the letter is not known. At this time, it is improbable that any postage stamps of Victoria were held at the Adelaide GPO for sale. I am unable to find this item listed in either Hans Karman's FRANK AND FREE or Carl Steig's Victoria Stationery Catalogue.

VICTORIAN NEWSPAPER WRAPPER WRITE-UP: MELBOURNE TO CERES 1883

Professor John K. Curtis
acapjajc@cityu.edu.hk

Introduction

The contemporary provenance of the 1882 Victorian wrapper analysed in this paper, catalogued as E6c by Stieg (2001) is a fascinating story of coincidence. Originally offered for sale on EBay, the wrapper that is shown in Illustration 1 was “lost” to another bidder. Coincidence number one is that the scan had been saved to a virtual library on computer hard disk. During the Easter holidays the scan had been studied in preparing a survey about Australian Colony wrappers that have appeared on EBay over a 12 month period (Curtis 2004). During that analysis it was identified as E6. Coincidence number two occurred when a friend in Melbourne sent me an email about wrappers for sale by a well-known US postal history dealer. One wrapper looked especially familiar and the scan in the library proved that it was the one that had been “lost” to another bidder a few months earlier. This E6 was the earliest issued Victorian wrapper sold on EBay in the past 15 months. I bought it from the dealer. The purpose of the paper is to trace the steps involved in the write-up from EBay scan to album and potential exhibit page.

Postal Stationery

Stieg (2001) and Kellow (1990) are invaluable references for identifying Victorian newspaper wrappers. According to Stieg this wrapper is E6 issued 21 August 1882. It shows an indicium of Queen Victoria sideface in green, designed and engraved by William Bell. Its size is 271x110mm on white wove paper, 15mm gum behind the top flap, with 103mm spacing between thin border lines. There are thick and thin brass rules at left that extend to the top (setting one). It is rouletted on the right hand side, with straight edge on the left. A spot of colour attached to the top of the bottom leg of ‘E’ of ‘ONE’ reaffirms it is position 1 on a plate of four. It was printed in Melbourne by the Stamp Printing Branch. The quantity issued was 80,000.

The paper is watermarked ONE PENNY VICTORIA with crown positioned above and between P and E of PENNY. There are four possible watermark positions. Normal occurs when the watermark reads from the bottom up toward the stamp design; reading down is reversed. The watermark can also be inverted. The watermark on the Ceres wrapper is both inverted and reversed and is shown as the fourth watermark in Illustration 3 (I/R). The dimensions of the watermark from the top of the crown to the base of the letters are 166x80mm.

Postal History

According to Davies and Lindfield (1980), this duplex canceller 1 is Type 6, 22.5mm circular MELBOURNE 1 K MY 29 83 & obliterator showing VICTORIA between 3-bars above & below. This duplex canceller was used between 29 January 1883 & 14 February 1885. The right leg of 'R' in MELBOURNE is straight, there is a short '1' under 'BO', the last 'E' projected cuts below top of V. And finally, the time code K means that the cancellation time was between 10.45 and 11.30 AM. These cancellation matters can be best viewed in Illustration 4.

The Northern Route

Ceres was no more than a village in 1883, located not that far north of Edinburgh, Scotland. The key to this interesting postal route is the cancellation date of 29 May 1883. The P. & O. steamship "Ballaarat" (this is the correct spelling) sailed from Melbourne on 1 June 1883 for Adelaide, King George's Sound to Colombo arriving 24/25 June 1883. Because a cholera epidemic in Egypt prevented mail passing through the Suez Canal from being delivered at any port in Southern Europe, a temporary solution, with permission of the British Postmaster General, transferred mails to P. & O. "Ganges" at Colombo.

On 10 June 1883 the Ganges sailed ex Calcutta to Madras and remained in Colombo between 20-24 June awaiting the mail from the Ballaarat. The Ganges then proceeded to Aden, Suez and through the Suez Canal (avoiding contact with the soil of Egypt) to Port Said. Mail was then discharged at Plymouth on 21 July reaching the GPO at 6.49 AM Sunday 22 July. This represented 52 days in transit, being 6 days late, but acceptable because of permission having been granted for the delay. Rail was from Plymouth to London, and then north by rail to Edinburgh, Scotland, and further north by rail to Ceres. Total transit time from the mailing date in Melbourne to delivery in Ceres was about 56 days.

The route and dates of this postal history story are very neat and tidy. If the write-up had been included in a postal history exhibit that had been judged by jurors who were not especially astute in recognizing the name of a distinguished Australian philatelist, then at the national level, it might have been graded at about the vermeil/large silver class. If it had been judged within Australia by knowledgeable postal stationery jurors, it would have been significantly downgraded. The class awarded would have been salvaged somewhat only because the jurors would have been rolling around the floor in hysterical laughter. The Ballaarat-Ganges story would be an elegant fit if the wrapper's destination had been Scotland, but unfortunately this was not the case.

Some years ago, I overheard a remark made by two conferring jurors while viewing a postal history exhibit that included information in the write-up about the addressee. They commented: "we are not interested in that stuff". Nevertheless, a little knowledge of social philately can be essential in determining the correct destination and so avoid the writing of an unintended "howler".

The Southern Route

While it is perfectly true that the wrapper went to Ceres, it was not Ceres, Scotland. It went instead to the pastoral area Ceres about six miles west-south-west of Geelong, within the colony of Victoria, and only a few hours by rail from Melbourne. In 1903 The Australian Handbook described Ceres and the description is reproduced as Illustration 5. Ceres is about 50 miles south of Melbourne, and in 1881 had a population of 289.

The key to identifying the correct postal route is not the cancellation date of 29 May 1883, but recognition of the recipient Mrs. Hill, living with her husband on the property called "Ilderbank". The husband of Mrs. Hill was the famous philatelist David Howard Hill, who in 1892 was the Founder-President of the Philatelic Society of Victoria. This name later became the Royal Philatelic Society of Victoria.

Hill was honorary President from 1894 until his death in 1926 (Butler 1990). A reproduction of the portrait of Hill is shown as Illustration 6 (Butler 1990). In 1893 he became a Fellow of The Royal Philatelic Society of London. He was also one of the original names on the Roll of Distinguished Philatelists, and a pioneer student of Victoria's stamps, notably the Half-Lengths (Chisholm 1957).

CERES (38° 11' S. lat., 144° 19' E. long.), a post town, in the county of Grant, electoral district of Grant, police division Mount Moriac, situated on one of the most prominent hills of the Barrabool, about 6 miles nearly W. of Geelong, and 51 miles SW. of Melbourne. Rail to Geelong, special cab thence, 5s. The river Barwon runs from W. to E., 2 miles N. of the village. The Waurin Pond chain of ponds lies about 2 miles S. One inn, the Barrabool, a State school, Church of England, Wesleyan chapel, Temperance hall, and two stores. Formation principally of sandstone covered with yellow clay, with black and chocolate soils. Immediately surrounding Ceres is beautiful undulating country, commanding a view of a vast landscape of plains and forest, with Mounts Moriac, Pollock, and other elevated land, and also an extended view of Bass Straits. Freestone quarry here. Population, 194; with vicinity, 280.

Illustration 5: Clipping of Ceres, Geelong

To commemorate David H. Hill's contribution to Victorian philately, the Council of the Society established a medal that was intended to be recognized as Australia's premier philatelic award "for distinguished service whether of a cultural or administrative nature done in the cause of adult philately". Mr. J. R. W. Purves was the first recipient of the award.

Illustration 6: David Howard Hill

Once having established the correct identity of the recipient, Ceres, near Geelong, is the correct geographic destination, thereby affording a proper routing of the wrapper from Melbourne's GPO. Several daily trains left from Spencer Street Station, Melbourne to Geelong, via Laverton, Hoppers Crossing, Little River, Lara and Corio. From the Geelong main post office, the mail was dispatched to Ceres post office by horse and rider or horse and cart for counter service pick-up. Ceres post office was opened 14 February 1856 and is located 81 km from Melbourne's G.P.O. Likely to be one day in-transit.

Album Page

When all the relevant information is included, the final write-up and layout is shown as Illustration 7, which for editorial convenience is shown as a separate page after the references. The album (and potential exhibit) page write-up is prepared in PowerPoint. For this particular page the PowerPoint page is a composite of seven text boxes, two of which contain pictures. It is possible to group items and cut and paste them into a Word document, but in this case, there is no assurance that the final page would correspond exactly in appearance to the PowerPoint page.. Instead, the page was scanned in 300dpi grayscale and the result shown in Illustration 7, reduced in size automatically to comply with the default Word document margins. However, since all the information shown has already been discussed, the Illustration is more to demonstrate the overall page layout than to reiterate the detail.

TAIWAN 2004 POSTAL STATIONERY ITEMS

Betty Van Tenac

The 10th Anniversary of Chinese Taipei Philatelic Federation was marked by the issue of a commemorative Domestic Registered Stamped Envelope on July 24, 2004.

The Federation was founded on 24 July 1994. Since that time it has held an annual national stamp exhibition and has also supported and participated in F.I.P and F.I.A.P exhibitions. The New Year Greeting stamp for Year of the Monkey (pink background) was used as the stamp indicia. The envelopes were printed multicolour on 105.5 g/m Woodfree printing paper by Cardon Enterprise Co. Ltd by Deep Etch offset.

The Taipei National Stamp Exhibition "Rocupex 04 Taipei" was held at the National Taiwan University Sports Centre" in Taipei from 6 to 10 August 2004.

To mark the occasion, Chunghwa Post issued a set of five commemorative registered envelopes on 6 August, each with a separate illustration of five well known scenic places to be found in Taipei City e.g. Presidential Building, National Palace Museum, Dr Sun Yat-sen Memorial Hall, Chiang Kai-shek Memorial Hall and Taipei 101 Finance Centre. The New Year Greeting stamp for Year of the Monkey (pink background) was used as the stamp indicia.

To coincide with "Rocupex 04 Taipei" Chunghwa Post issued a commemorative "Domestic Prompt Delivery" stamped envelope on 6 August 2004. The New Year Greeting stamp for Year of the Monkey (red background) was used as the stamp indicia. The illustration in the bottom right corner is Taipei Post Office in the Early Days. Envelopes were printed multicolour by Cardon Enterprise Co. Ltd on 105.g/m Woodfree paper.

A postal card was also issued for "Rocupex 04 Taipei" by Chunghwa Post Co. Lt. Taipei R.O.C. The card also used the Year of the Monkey stamp design for the indicia. Six cards were issued on 6 August each with a different design in the bottom right corner.

NSW GOVERNMENT PUNCTURES ON AUSTRALIAN POSTCARDS BUYER ALERT!

In May 2001 PSC (#25, pp24-25) I originally submitted a summary of punctured OS/NSW postcards. However a recent article by Wayne Menuz in July-August 2004 UPSS magazine 'Postal Stationery' (#337, pp115-117), entitled 'Australian Official Perfin Stationery' has prompted me to make a further detailed examination of my reasonably substantial holdings of these punctured cards. My observations, and conclusions derived from Wayne's and my own combined studies have resulted in this paper.

Following the federation of the Australian colonies in 1901, the federal government assumed control over postal services of each of the six individual states. In New South Wales the practice commenced in 1902 to puncture stamps and later postal cards, intended for government use. This was a security measure to deter staff pilferage. Tight accounting procedures were in place for stamp and postcard distribution to the various departments, and because punctures created a distinctly different appearance, it was assumed private purpose theft and/or usage would not occur (or at least be minimal!).

Prior to issue to the various State Government Departments, the NSW government arranged with the Government Printing Office to puncture stamp sheets and postcards with OS/NSW in two lines. This was carried out on a manually operated foot treadle machine which punctured Post Office stamp sheets one horizontal row at a time, with sheets moved forward by hand until all rows were punctured. Postcards (and some other forms of postal stationery) were individually inserted to ensure puncture holes would exactly coincide with the top right corner stamp impression.

Postcard Pin Setting (1909 to 1922)

Over the years several distinctive puncture variations occurred on stamps (which is beyond the scope of this paper - further reference can be made to pp30-31, Stamp News, August 1985). With postcards, only one puncture type is noted:

Lettering is 14mm high and 17mm wide. Individual letters approximate 6mm in height.

Holes per letter are: O = 8, S = 8, N = 10, S = 8, W = 11. Total holes = 45. The base of the first S is distinctly flattened, appearing almost as a reversed "2".

In the majority of cases punctured postcards were pre-printed or pre-roneoed on reverse prior to forwarding to respective departments. Their message was usually a mere acknowledgement receipt for inward correspondence received, or for advice of goods being forwarded. Very few unprinted/blank message cards exist. From about 1909 the NSW state 1d 'Jubilee' design (shield and crown) postcards were punctured OS/NSW, and the first Australian card noted is the 1911 KGV 'Fullface' design with July 1911 revised heading (PC3: numbers refer to Seven Seas Australasian Stamp Catalogue, ed. 23). This is a particularly rare puncture (only a couple of used copies have survived, these all being correspondence acknowledgement for Sydney Harbour Trust).

The reason for PC3's rarity is that although the Commonwealth introduced this card in 1911,

New South Wales opted not to accept 1d Australian cards but preferred to continue producing their own state printed 'Jubilee' design cards. (This may have also been a rebellious aftermath of locating the Commonwealth Stamp Printer in Melbourne, despite the Sydney Government Printing Office being markedly better equipped to handle the job!) Although patriotically obligated to accept the June 1911 KGV coronation commemorative cards (a minimal order of just 49,462 such cards was forwarded to Sydney, but none were allocated to NSW government departments), it was not until the 1913 issue of the 1d 'Kangaroo & Map' design card that the federal government actually forced NSW to cease local Sydney printing of state postcards. The definitive 'Fullface' card was never sold in NSW post offices (nor Queensland, for that matter), and instances of OS/NSW punctured cards arise solely from 1913 residual federal distribution of superseded 1911 'Fullface' stock in conjunction with the newly issued 'Kangaroo' design cards.

PC3: 3 June 1913 correspondence acknowledgement advice by Sydney Harbour Trust

The practice of puncturing government postcards with undamaged holes continued until mid-1922. Only cards available over the Post Office counter were so treated. Printed to private order cards were never punctured. On rare occasions a commonwealth 'OS' die was utilised, but more usually a standard stamp electro without OS was used and the cards were merely preprinted with the heading OHMS or On His Majesty's Service. The Sydney Collector of Customs (a federal government instrumentality) and the NSW Registrar General's Department are two such examples. Set out below is my listing of OS/NSW punctured postcards during this period. This list may well not be exhaustive, since it is quite likely other cards of which I am unaware, may also have been punctured:

- PC3 1d red KGV fullface on white enamel stock: 'The left half of this side...'
- PC6 1d red Kangaroo on white enamel stock: Die II (catalogue incorrectly states Die I).
- PC6a Ditto, but on cream to buff stock: Die I (catalogue states Die II – both dies exist, but only Die I has been noted with puncture).
- PC7 1d red KGV sideface on white enamel stock: Die I [Die II may also exist, but no report of its existence has so far been recorded].
- PC8 Ditto, but on buff stock with two line inscription.

- PC12 THREE HALFPENCE revaluation of PC10 1d red KGV with dividing line on front. [The original PC10 probably does not exist, and I certainly have never seen a copy].
- PC13 1½d russet brown KGV with footnote.
- PC14 1½d red-brown KGV, footnote removed.

First Damaged State of Postcard Pin Setting (1923 to 1936)

The thickness of postcard board placed considerable strain on pins in the puncturing head, causing some individual pins to become blunt or alternatively to completely snap from the head. There is evidence of both types of damage late in 1922 or early 1923. This correlates with Menuz's observations in his UPSS article.

Letter O: one lower left pin (8 o'clock) in O has now completely snapped. The lower right pin (at 5 o'clock) has been moved or pushed to top right and now appears closer to the extreme right pin (at 3 o'clock).

Letter N: Stages of progressive damage occurred with the top left pin of N which in conjunction with the missing O pin is found either:

- (a) normal.
- (b) blunted, producing an indentation (blind impression) rather than a satisfactory hole;
- (c) omitted: gradually the top N pin either blunted further, or totally broke away from the puncturing head. Top left hole is completely missing.

PC14: 1½d red-brown (footnote removed) used 18 May 1923, for Sydney Harbour Trust. The O pin is missing and N evidences state (b) with blind pin impression.

OS/NSW postcard punctures continued in this damaged state for the ensuing fourteen years, and it was not until the May 1936 issue of KGV 1½d red-brown card on flimsy lettercard stock (PC29a) that repairs to the postcard puncturing pin head were effected. Cards evidencing the initial damaged state of Pin Setting are:

- PC14 1½d red-brown KGV, footnote removed.
- PC22 1d violet KGV [PC15 1½d emerald may exist with OS/NSW puncture, but I have not come across a copy. It is very doubtful if the scarce PC16, or any of the ONE PENNY provisionally revalued cards (PC18 to PC21) were punctured. PC22, 2d scarlet was certainly never punctured].
- PC23 1d green KGV on buff stock. Die I.
- PC24 1d green KGV on white stock. Die III.
- PC25 Simplified heading 1d green KGV without central dividing line. Die I.
- PC26 Ditto, but Die III.
- PC29 1½d red-brown KGV on ivory stock. Both 83mm & 88mm footnote types were punctured.

PC25: 1d green (Die I- simplified heading without address dividing line) used 30 May 1927 by State Government Printer. This shows missing pins in both letters O and N (state (c) above)

Repair of Damaged Postcard Pins (1936 to 1941)

Late in KGV's reign (early 1936), the NSW Government Printer repaired all damage to the postcard puncturing pinhead. The broken O and N pins were replaced, although it seems the minor bent 5 o'clock pin in O went unnoticed, and still remains:

- PC29a 1½d red-brown KGV, but on temporary very flimsy lettercard stock (issued May 1936).
- PC31 1½d red-brown KGV on ivory stock. [Concurrent PC30 1d green Queen mother card was printed matter rate only and was not supplied to government departments].

Second State of Damage to Postcard Pins (1941 to 1946)

1936 pin repairs were quickly negated by a second form of pin damage. This again affected the left leg of N in that the third (second bottom) pin now broke, resulting in a gap reappearing. Initial card to evidence the damage was the January 1942 provisional upgrade

2d card, being 1d + 1d green double impression of the Queen Elizabeth (Queen mother) postcard. This scarce card is interesting in that both stamp impressions were punctured, which was no doubt a labour intensive task to complete! One wonders what benefits were gained from the no doubt inordinate time consumed in its completion.

PC31: 17 June 1938 correspondence acknowledgement card for Maritime Services Board of NSW. On the final KGV postcards all missing pins were reinserted, but 5 o'clock O pin remains bent upward.

Two different punctured cards bear this second form of damage:

- PC32 1d green + 1d green double impression Queen Mother.
- PC33a 2d violet KGVII on off-white stock (1946 reprint). [PC33 (1943 2d printing on ivory stock) may also have been punctured, however I have never seen such a copy].

PC32: 1d+1d Queen Elizabeth double impression card, which following 1941 war tax, uprated PC30 from printed matter rate. Both stamp impressions were punctured. New (different) break in N pin.

Further Repair to Postcard Pins, or merely a Perfin Fake?

It was my understanding that this 2d KGVI violet card (PC33a) was the final postcard to be punctured OS/NSW for government use. In a philatelic auction earlier this year I noted OS/NSW punctured copies of PC33a plus surprisingly, a punctured OS/NSW copy of PC38: 1957 QEII issue of 4d on 3d green Die II revalued card - both examples unused and both without prior pre-printing on reverse (ie. message sides were blank). Although I acquired this pristine mint example of the hitherto unknown OS/NSW PC38, I was wary of the use of the identical puncture on PC33a.

On both these cards, the letter N perforation is now whole, and it would appear the missing left leg pin is restored. The bent 5 o'clock pin in O is also straightened. Was the postcard puncturing head now fully restored, repaired or replaced? It would be expected that my genuine example of PC33a, which was postally used 5 February 1948 by NSW State Government Printer, should have identical puncture characteristics to all genuinely punctured PC33a examples. But this is not so! Checking out further, I noted from other auction illustrations that punctured OS/NSW examples of both PC31 (KGVI 1½d red-brown) and the very scarce P32 (QE 1d+1d double impression) were also offered in pristine mint condition (and without reverse pre-printed message). Additionally, these both bore identical puncture hole placement in which the missing pin of N was restored and the bent O pin was corrected to its original 5 o'clock position. Neither of these repairs was ever carried out by the NSW Government Printing Office. Punctures on all these four cards are undoubtedly faked!

In support of non-repair of the stationery pin-puncture head (the Printing Office only owned one), the illustration at left is of A9: April 1959 10d aerogramme, used 17 May 1960 by Australian Museum, Sydney. The OS/NSW puncture is genuine, and clearly shows that, as late as 1959 the pin perforator still retained a broken left leg of N and bent 5 o'clock pin of O.

There was only ever one pin puncture head for stationery held at the NSW Government Printing Office. It is not possible for this to be missing the N pin during 1942 to 1946, have it repaired between 1946 and 1957, only to have the exact same pin disappear again by 1959! I can only conclude that, in each instance, all the above four unused examples of PC31, PC32, PC33a and PC38, have never been anywhere near the State Printing Office, and that their respective OS/NSW puncture has been faked.

But are these the only postal stationery faked punctures in the marketplace? Periodically an extremely minimal offering of punctured OS/NSW stationery is offered for sale. Over the past twelve months (since September 2003), one Australian auction house has offered an abnormally high number of punctured stationery items – indeed, over 30 items in 27 different lots. Not only have they offered OS/NSW postcards, but also supposedly ‘rare’ envelopes and aerogrammes. No doubt many of their items have genuine punctures, but in my opinion several are highly questionable.

Wayne Menuz comments on two punctured NSW Education Department envelopes he acquired last year, commenting they look “strange”, but they are the first he has seen. He raises the question “why would there be need to spend the time and money to perfin an envelope that, because of the printing on it, is already restricted in use”? Indeed, why? Subsequently similarly punctured envelopes have also turned up for Sydney Board of Water and a perfin “T” for the Hobart Savings Bank. These stamped to private order envelopes would have been dealt with directly between the individual state government instrumentality concerned and the Commonwealth Stamp Printer in Melbourne. The NSW items would never have entered into the NSW Government Printing Office (where OS/NSW punctures were created). What obvious conclusion can there be? The status of the puncture must surely be suspicious. In their September 2004 auction, the auction house's description is even carefully worded "perfin rather doubtful...". To my mind, several rather nice pieces of desirable stationery have now been totally ruined!!!

PC38: Mint and genuine 4d on 3d revalued QE2 postcard (issued 12 June 1957). However, for reasons explained, the OS/NSW puncture on this unused card is faked.

It is extremely easy for any would-be forger to simply place a genuine punctured card (or a template made from a genuine card) over another stationery item, then carefully drill through each hole to produce an identical OS/NSW puncture pattern. A dentist's drill of appropriate diameter would be an ideal tool. No expert committee would be prepared to provide a certificate for such perfins. My concluding warning is there appears to be faked stationery punctures being recently offered, and it becomes a case of being alert to whether the puncture is genuine! Punctured Australian stationery is a very nice addition to any collection, but the intending purchaser should give some thought to whether the item has actually passed through the office of the State Government Printer. With postcards, preference should be given to used examples printed on reverse with specific government department names and/or messages. As John Howard would say "be alert, but not alarmed!".

Postcard News

Advice from Martin Walker on 23 August 2004:

It's on again! The chase for new tourist scene prepaid postcards. Today I bought five new cards. Went on sale last week in Adelaide suburbs but when I checked with local PO the product order sheet stated 'on sale mid-September'. The five I bought are -

17901- Federation Square

17754 - Penguins (new view with recently issued penguin stamp)

17756 - Australian Animals - multiview card - six scenes

17755 - Sydney Harbour Bridge - same as maxicard scene from stamp issued earlier this year

17824 - Barossa Valley - new view

In addition - these were on the new products sheet - and, get this, a pack of 8 different fauna cards plus a free pen for $8.95. (code 17670).

17902 - Eyre Peninsula

17903 - Mount William National Park

17904 - Broome

Later advice from Martin:

After some debate, effort and research from Australia Post Retail these are the dates we have settled upon as First Day of Issue of each of the new cards. The dates are those of first order despatched by the distributor of stamps. These were much more relevant, and believable, than using the date the product codes were first added to the AP inventory system. The dates are for South Australia and may vary in other states. There are two exceptions to this rule. The three cards associated with the recent coastline series have dates to match the stamps. The Sydney Harbour Bridge card was issued much earlier than the rest and the date is when the card was distributed in New South Wales.

17901- Federation Square (1/8/04)

17754 - Penguins (new view with recently issued penguin stamp) (13/7/04)

17756 - Australian Animals - multiview card - six scenes (1/7/04)

17755 - Sydney Harbour Bridge - same as maxicard scene from stamp issued earlier this year (1/5/04)

17824 - Barossa Valley - new view (1/8/04)

17902 - Eyre Peninsula (6/9/04)

17903 - Mount William National Park (6/9/04)

17904 - Broome (6/9/04)

Pack of 8 different fauna cards plus a free pen for $8.95. (code 17670). (17/8/04).

BOOK REVIEW : LAS TARJETAS POSTALES DE ALFONSO XII PARA EL INTERIOR DE LA NACION

Ray Todd

Published by Academia Hispanica de Philatelia (Spanish Philatelic Academy) 192 pp perfect bound, No 17 in a series of works published by the Academy. In Spanish and in full colour, 170 x 240mm. Author Jose Manuel Rodriguez ISSN 1139-5494

It is a pleasure to review this book for my friend Jose Manuel Rodriguez who is a specialist in the Postal Stationery of the Spanish area, a FIP Judge in this area and President of the Spanish Postal Stationery Commission.

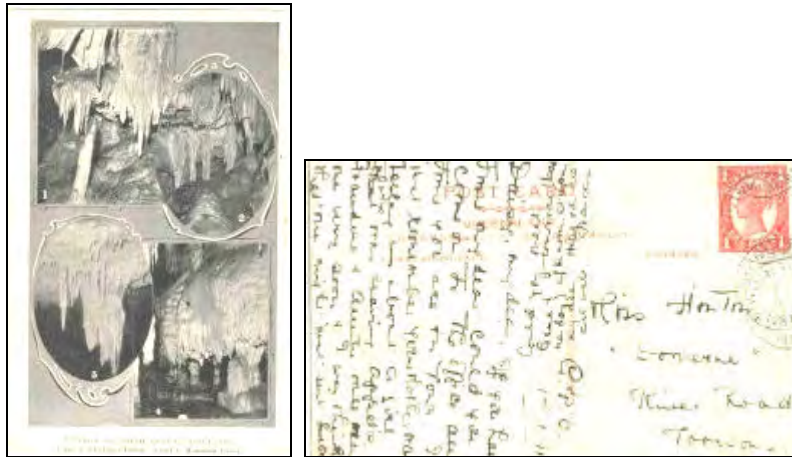

As stated in the title the book covers the inland cards of the period during the reign of King Alfonso XII. This period starts in 1875 and covers just four basic cards the 5 centavos arms, the 5centavos side face, the 10 centavos side face and the 15 + 15 side face centavos double reply card.

The coverage of these issues by the author is very complete and covers the legislation in relation to the cards, a comprehensive list and explanation of the tariffs, the scale of usage of the cards during their issue period, the design and engraving of the dies for their eventual printing by lithography, the paper differences, errors and freaks and for the researcher the many varieties which are clearly identified.

The popular trend in collecting the privately printed messages on the reverse of postal cards is also covered with examples of some and a listing of all known messages by card issue. These are very interesting and cover many topics including steamer departure dates, subscription notices, church meetings etc. One of the features of these particular cards are that they were overprinted in all large cities in Spain and were not just concentrated in Madrid

I can thoroughly recommend this book to anyone remotely interested in the Spanish area as the coverage would be useful for Traditional and Postal History and other collectors. Thank you to Jose Manual for the copy

Contemporary Postal Stationery Competition

Members are reminded that this Competition will be offered at all National exhibitions in Australia until 2008. Joan Orr's exhibit at Swan River Stampshow, 'Papua New Guinea, the Stationery 1975-1995', is the first entry in the competition. It was awarded a Large Silver medal. Congratulations to Joan. She will receive a memento of the occasion from the Society. Please contact the Convener David Collyer, PO Box 201, Gladesville NSW 1675 for more information about Competition.

Tenth Anniversary of the Society

The Postal Stationery Society of Australia has now reached the tenth year of its life. This is a great effort for a small specialized collectors' group, and our thanks are due to our Coordinator and Editor, Ian McMahon, for the work he has put into nurturing and running the Society.

Issue No 1 of the Postal Stationery Society appeared in May 1995. It consisted of 22 pages, printed on white paper, with a single corner staple. The Editor stated on page 2: 'The Postal Stationery Society of Australia has been established to encourage the collecting of postal stationery in Australia and to provide a forum for postal stationery collectors to maintain contact with other stationery collectors and to learn more about their hobby'.

The Editor would like some 'special' material to publish in the journal during 2004-2005 to mark the anniversary. Please contact Ian directly if you have any ideas for contributions about the history of the Society and need advice. Material for publication should be sent to Ian at PO Box 783, Civic Square ACT 2608, or by email.

MEETING OF PSSA, 3.00PM FRIDAY 10 SEPTEMBER 2004
SWAN RIVER SHOW 2004 – FREMANTLE PASSENGER TERMINAL

Present

Ian McMahon in the Chair, with Dingle Smith acting as Minute Secretary. Eighteen members and guests attended.

Apologies.

Judy Kennett, John Crowsley, Martin Walker, Derek Brennan

Ian McMahon welcomed all those at the meeting and drew attention to membership forms and sample journals.

Any Other Business & Discussion.

John Sinfield reported on the surfeit of OS NSW and GNSW perfins on postcards that had appeared in various sales in Sydney over the last 18 months. Many of these appear to be, in John's opinion, forgeries and he hopes to write an article for the journal in the near future. Some examples were on cards dated long after the use of such perfins ceased.

John also reported that an updated list of Australia Post cards should be available in forthcoming issues of the journal. The latest issue date available was 6 September 2004. John had examples for distribution to interested collectors at the meeting. There was also a recently issued pack of eight No Value Indicated Australian fauna cards available (with pen!) at $8.95. John had not yet seen these.

There were also three Western Australia cards overprinted with the Swan River Stampshow Logo. The logo printing was undertaken by Australia Post.

Joan Orr reminded members of the continuing Contemporary Postal Stationery Competition. Her entry 'Papua New Guinea, the Stationery 1975-1995' in the Swan River Stampshow was the first entry in the Competition. David Collyer is the contact for details about taking part in the Competition, which runs until 2008.

Bernie Beston reported that Steve Schumann (USA) had been elected as President of the FIP Postal Stationery Commission.

Bernie proposed that the Society should consider organising/supporting a 2-day postal stationery convention with display frames and dealers. The Gold Coast or other regional centre could be a possible venue. In discussion, the problems of the Society having the funds to afford such an event were raised. It might be possible to combine such a Convention with another Show. Bernie agreed to undertake a feasibility study of such a Postal Stationery Convention and to report the results to the Society.

Ian McMahon reminded the meeting that the 10th anniversary of the formation of the Society was fast approaching and welcomed suggestions as to how this could be commemorated.

Display

Joan Orr presented a 2-frame display of PTPO postal stationery items for Australia and Papua New Guinea with examples from both the KGVI and QEII periods. These included wrappers, envelopes, postcards and reply cards.

Philip Levine also exhibited a number of items.

The displays were much appreciated and Ian McMahon formally thanked Joan and Philip at the conclusion of the meeting.

Acting Minute Secretary

As described in the last issue, New Zealand Post increased its domestic rate recently from 40c to 45c. A 5c stamp was issued to meet the demand for uprating and is shown above used on a 40c PSE.

Australia

On 3 August 2004, Australia issued a 50c PSE to mark the centenary of the Australian Industrial Relations Commission. The envelope was designed by Imelda Lijuwardi and printed by PMP Tasmania.

A prepaid postcard was issued on 3 August depicting the Boxing Kangaroo. In addition five unstamped postcards were included in a prestige booklet which sold for $10.95:

- Bill Boyd lines up against his pet Kango Joe in 1923
- Boxing kangaroos feature in A Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus Poster
- The boxing kangaroo flag flies on an Australian yacht
- The Boxing Kangaroo: a great Aussie Sport
- Kangaroos Boxing near Lake Macquarie 1950

Samoa, Papua New Guinea and Fiji

From Steve Zirinsky prepaid Samoan and Fiji envelopes. In addition registered use of a PNG PSE, and just to prove that some countries still use postal notes, I have illustrated a Fijian 20c example issued in 2004.

Canada

Canada issued a prepaid postcard as part of a ‘Canada Celebration Pack’ ($19.95) which included a travel pack, a water bottle, t-shirt, and a 25¢ coin in a protective velour pouch, usually given only to new Canadians as a souvenir of their citizenship achievement.

Hong Kong

Hong Kong has issued a set of pictorial postcards to mark the centenary of Hong Kong’s trams.

New Caledonia

Recent New Caledonian PSEs include envelopes commemorating French Research, 125yrs Moindou, Mont-Dore Sports, Tiebaghi Mining Area, Pouembout Dovecote and Lapita Pottery. In addition, New Caledonia has issued a set of 10 scenery-post cards showing New Caledonia scenery. Also illustrated is an example of a PSE used to Vanuatu supplied by Steve Zirinsky.

North Korea

North Korea continues to issue bright and colourful 'aerogrammes' on thick paper, primarily for sale to collectors.

USA

On 23 June the USA issued a set of 23c postal cards depicting Disney characters. The cards were issued in a $9.75 booklet of 20 (with 4 different designs). The cards were designed by David Pacheco, and offset printed by the Banknote Corporation of America. 68,000 booklets (1,360,000 cards) were printed.

Micronesia and Ascension

From Steve Zirinsky two postcards from Micronesia. In addition a new Ascension aerogramme is illustrated.

India

Being sold at Singapore 2004, one of a set of Indian postcards promoting personal hygiene.

Singapore

The Singapore Post Office had a stand at the World Stamp Championship 2004 selling personalized stamps. One innovation was that you could also buy prepaid postcards which your picture incorporated into the design on the reverse of the card at the 'MyStamp My Postcard' stall. Illustrated above is a card as sold by the PO with a WSC 2004 logo and another with my portrait as well as the stall where they could be obtained. A pity that the picture wasn't on the stamp side of the card which is illustrated below. The PO had trouble deciding where to cancel the postcards. Some of the cards I posted were postmarked on the reverse side while others on the postage paid imprint on the front of the cards. Also being distributed were postcards to promote tourism with the postage being paid by the Singapore tourism board.
